such boys are raised .- Chango Journal. A correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazene thus describes a visit to the estate of Mr. Peabody, an eminent horticulturial near Columbus, Georgia: "Mr. Peabody has a very healthy location on a hill in the pine woods-over 600 acres; and when they went on it, thirteen years ago not a tree had been cut. He cleara space for his house, and they moved to the next spring. He has proved the most percecaful cultivator of many kinds of truits, berries and melous, in this country. I saw 1000 bills of watermelons, on which will be ripe truit by cuently picked them weighing 50 pounds -His great peculiarity with Etrawberries, is the quantity of frost, its size and flavor, and the constant bearing of the vines; always has plenty of fine berries for six months-trequent ly eight-and last season he had them every month in the year. Recoll of this is in the open air-in his open fields. I saw 8 acres of Strawberries; the vines are very small, and covered (the ground literally looks red) with most delicious large Hovey berries, These vines have been in just as full bearing since the 10th of March, and he says will continue until middle of September, and as much longer as frost keeps away, if he chooses to attend ! them Mr. P. sends to this market from 15to 200 quarts per day, and says he could nick double that quantity if the market was larger
